Introduction

POGO, the TURTLE, and the ALLIGATOR, before leaving for the wide, wide world, wish to show their Okefenokee Swamp to all. This beloved swamp is swarming with all kinds of smaller animals who are getting ready to take their place, and is blessed with the presence of the owl, the raccoon, and other fine, scholarly animals, who have the great faculty of remaining static in all the bustle. With this brief explanation in mind, put on your boots; let's go.

THE SENIOR CLASS

NE'S SCHOOL

VIRGINIA

Dear Calvert,

Well honey there's not much to say but I'll do my best to fill up this lovely page. Calvert, you and your good humor have gotten me through this agonizing year. I did not think the end would ever come but now it's here and my head is full of gray hairs — I wonder why? Well you and I can stick together and not come back to this "U.U." We'll show them we can stick to our decisions. Now watch us both be back at this hole next year and those lovely week-ends. I can hardly wait till next year when I can cry some more but I'll tell you one safe shore thing — I'm going to blot out the bad memories of this gross 9 months with the three glorious months I'll have in the summer. Now will it be Rudy — or Maxie. I'll put my bet on Rudy cause Maxie either wants to marry or hates me. What a sad world. Now Calvert be sweet to Bill even though you hate him with a passion. Who will Calvert be loving next. You and all those summer romances. You are going to break every boy's heart but you will evidently mend one's heart too.

Thank you again for keeping me going and especially for your uplifting talks. Next year when we come back — Oh no! I admitted the horrible fact — we are going to tear this St. C. down to the ground. Well must leave but only till Sept 14.

Maxie
and

Love ya,
Gene Zorro

P.S. Thanks for everything

Dedication

MISS MARY DENMEAD RUFFIN

In deep appreciation for her patience, her understanding, and her interest in each student, we, the Senior Class, dedicate the QUAIR of 1960 to Miss Mary Denmead Ruffin, our teacher, advisor, and friend.

"I am not a teacher: only a fellow-traveller of whom you asked the way. I pointed ahead . . . ahead of myself as well as you."

Dear Calveria,

Since Suz and I are such good friends I thought that this page would be appropriate. Next year if we're not the first to be kicked out - will be the second. This year has been a hell of a lot of fun and its been great rooming with you again this year although I can imagine you sometimes wish you were elsewhere. If you don't come back to Charleston (with both eyes) I'll beat you. Seriously we are all expecting you so we can let the air out of S. Brown's car and drive all over the nation. Remember all the fun we had this year making all the rules and being members of the Anniversary. But it was neat so much. We will have to be on the same hall next year if you come back and I'm sure you will. Be good and stay the sweet, cute girl that you are. Keep an eye on Johnny, Ripshin, J.C. "Monum Hox", Bill Wood, the stew, and the lake. Really its been wonderful knowing you and I'll miss you like hell if you don't come back. Love ya! Walden P. G. Don't forget last year - as if you could!

MISS SUSANNA PLEASANTS TURNER

Our Headmistress

Message to the Senior Class

OWLS, of course, are supposed to be wise, but Howland Owl usually acts in a foolish fashion which makes us enjoy him all the more. Sometimes he loses his glasses for a whole week and is proportionately bewildered; sometimes he is outdone because Friday the thirteenth falls on Wednesday; sometimes he works with unrewarded zeal on long mathematical problems that never add up to anything.

Is Mr. Kelly saying that there is no wisdom? I think not, though he is making light of the trappings of wisdom. Howland's astronomer's hat, the long pages of figures, the wise look linked with the silly action all tell us what even the not-very-wise should know,—that superficialities and external appearances do not constitute wisdom. Also, everyone, even the sage, becomes involved in what is very foolish. More important, however, through Owl and Mr. Walt Kelly, perhaps we can grasp the essence of wisdom—the ability to see the emptiness of pomposity, the ability to see the ridiculous aspects of daily affairs, and above all the ability to laugh at ourselves, for there is little of an owl but much of you and me in Howland.

As you, the seniors, seek new heights of wisdom, let us hope that you will laugh gently at the ways of human beings in your Quair Squares of the future. Then perhaps you can learn with George Santayana, "It is not wisdom to be only wise," for wisdom is compounded not of mere knowledge, but of humor, forgiveness, love, and faith.

come back next year so that the school

THE SENIOR CLASS

CLASS HISTORY

THE Pogo gang in the great swamp began in 1946. Rowena, Linda, Jean, Tee, Janie, Susan Foy, Clare, Stu, Helen, Pecky, Eva, Kate Roy, Melinda, Becky, Betsy Stevens, Sarah, Florrie, and Pammy showed up one morning with Pogo, Cherchy, and Al. We all had clean dresses and faces, and were bright and eager to begin our education. However, when we left, we were dirty and disheveled, and the teachers were clinging weakly to their desks after three hours of games and fights. Much to his chagrin, Al was never chosen to be the mouse in Farmer-in-the-Dell. Jean socked Stu for stealing her paste. It must be noted that Archer joined us for a couple of weeks, and that Carol McCue came in the middle of the year; but neither one of them could stop writing backwards.

Anne Rawles, Melissa, Mary Ann, and Ann Mason joined us in the first grade. We all had great success with growing plants except Pogo—not only his plant but also he refused to grow. Al had the best and biggest plant of all, of course; he had a green thumb.

Beth and Sally came the next year. Susan was already a virtuoso pianist. Cherchy's name was always on the blackboard black list. We churned butter and ate it on crackers. We were determined it was delicious even though it desperately needed salt.

The next year Frances came, and Helen left, fearing that staying all day would be too much of a strain. Cherchy was so terrified of multiplication tables that we had to put Mrs. deColigny's horse collar around his neck to keep his head out. We wrote our deepest secrets in My Diary; they included "It is pretty outdores. Maybee Mrs. deColigny will lets us out erly." Anne Rawles had her troubles with Miss Murray's strictness. We entered the era of many skating parties, one on each birthday. Al wanted to be Gitche Gumee in the commencement version of Hiawatha, but backed out when someone finally told him it was a lake.

In the fourth grade, Beverley Hill came. Mrs. Ward made trouble-makers alphabetize the spelling lesson; Florrie alphabetized the whole spelling book three times. Kate Roy was a little devil in the Christmas play—everyone else was an angel. Pogo rested on his log instead of a cot during rest hour and sometimes actually went to sleep. No one yet knows the full membership of the secret closet club—an organization for evading playground. If one of us was sent into the hall, she knocked Morse code on the door of the other section, telling someone in the other class to misbehave quickly and help her fight off the Great Dane who prowled the halls.

In the fifth grade we were joined by Lizzy, Bev Hershey, and Nancy. Melinda, Frances, and Jean acted out "I Love Lucy" every Friday afternoon in amateur hour for the benefit of the many who had no television. Nancy had seventy grasshoppers all around the classroom. While trying to keep up with the temporary fad, Al accidentally swallowed Cherchy's hopscotch rock.

After B. Cavade joined us, we became the first sixth grade in Hannah Washington Hall. As soon as Madame walked into the room for French class, Sally was sent out; Madame once told Beth, "You are ugly enough without making faces." Melissa always sneaked back and put on her tennis shoes during history class so that she could be the first one to gym. By the end of the year, Al had written a thousand times, "I will keep my mouth shut." The ceiling fell in on Linda.

When we finally advanced to the Middle School, Whitlock had been razed; we had to go to the bungalows. Pogo had to stop resting and start studying. Miss Hood got us all enthusiastic over time lines and Gothic Cathedrals. Tee locked Miss Thruston in a strategic place while the rest of us messed up her shades. Most of us looked wistfully at the boys who came to visit the eighth graders.

In the eighth grade, Vicky and Sheila came, and Helen came back. Mrs. deColigny absolutely loved Helen's public school handwriting, and held it up as an example of what we should work for. Pogo got three demerits for playing bridge out of the study hall windows. Mrs. deColigny sent Pecky home with her dog. What a grand publication our "8 to 8 Tête à Tête" was!

All of us advanced to the Upper School with great fear and trepidation. Cherchy lost his head completely. We all wondered how long it would be before we would be expected to work until two o'clock every night. We were joined by Susanne, Elizabeth, Cookie Richardson, and Jarvis, Betsy Jones, B.K., and Susan Miller. In spite of our apprehensions, things went rather smoothly after a slight bout with soapsuds in the johns. We soon distinguished ourselves as a brilliant but erratic class. Who else would think of getting Hallowe'en candy from the day students by pulling the Hallowe'en bag by a string up to the second story window? Cookie Richardson, playing Gretel in "Hansel and Gretel," frightened everyone nearly to death by completely losing her voice.

Terry, Archer, Vicky, Coxe, Sarah Fox, Sally Gump, Susan Jones, Page, Wibs, Sallie Mac, Lucy, Carol Manning, Millie, Carolyn, Huntly, and Winnie came in the tenth grade. Miss Morris told Pecky and Clare with great glee that they still looked exactly as they had in the first grade. Brave Barbara tried on the bikini at the class picnic.

The next year, after saying good-bye to Latin, we were joined by Libby, Annes Dempster, Stewart, and Lowe, Panny, Tracy, Bebe, Sally Train, Lauren, Dottie, Beth Lemle, Missy, Mary, and Julie. Much to Tracy's dismay, Elizabeth would not wake up. Pogo had to step aside for Peter Pan and Ann Lowe as Tink, but by the end of the year he was proudly heading the daisy chain up the green.

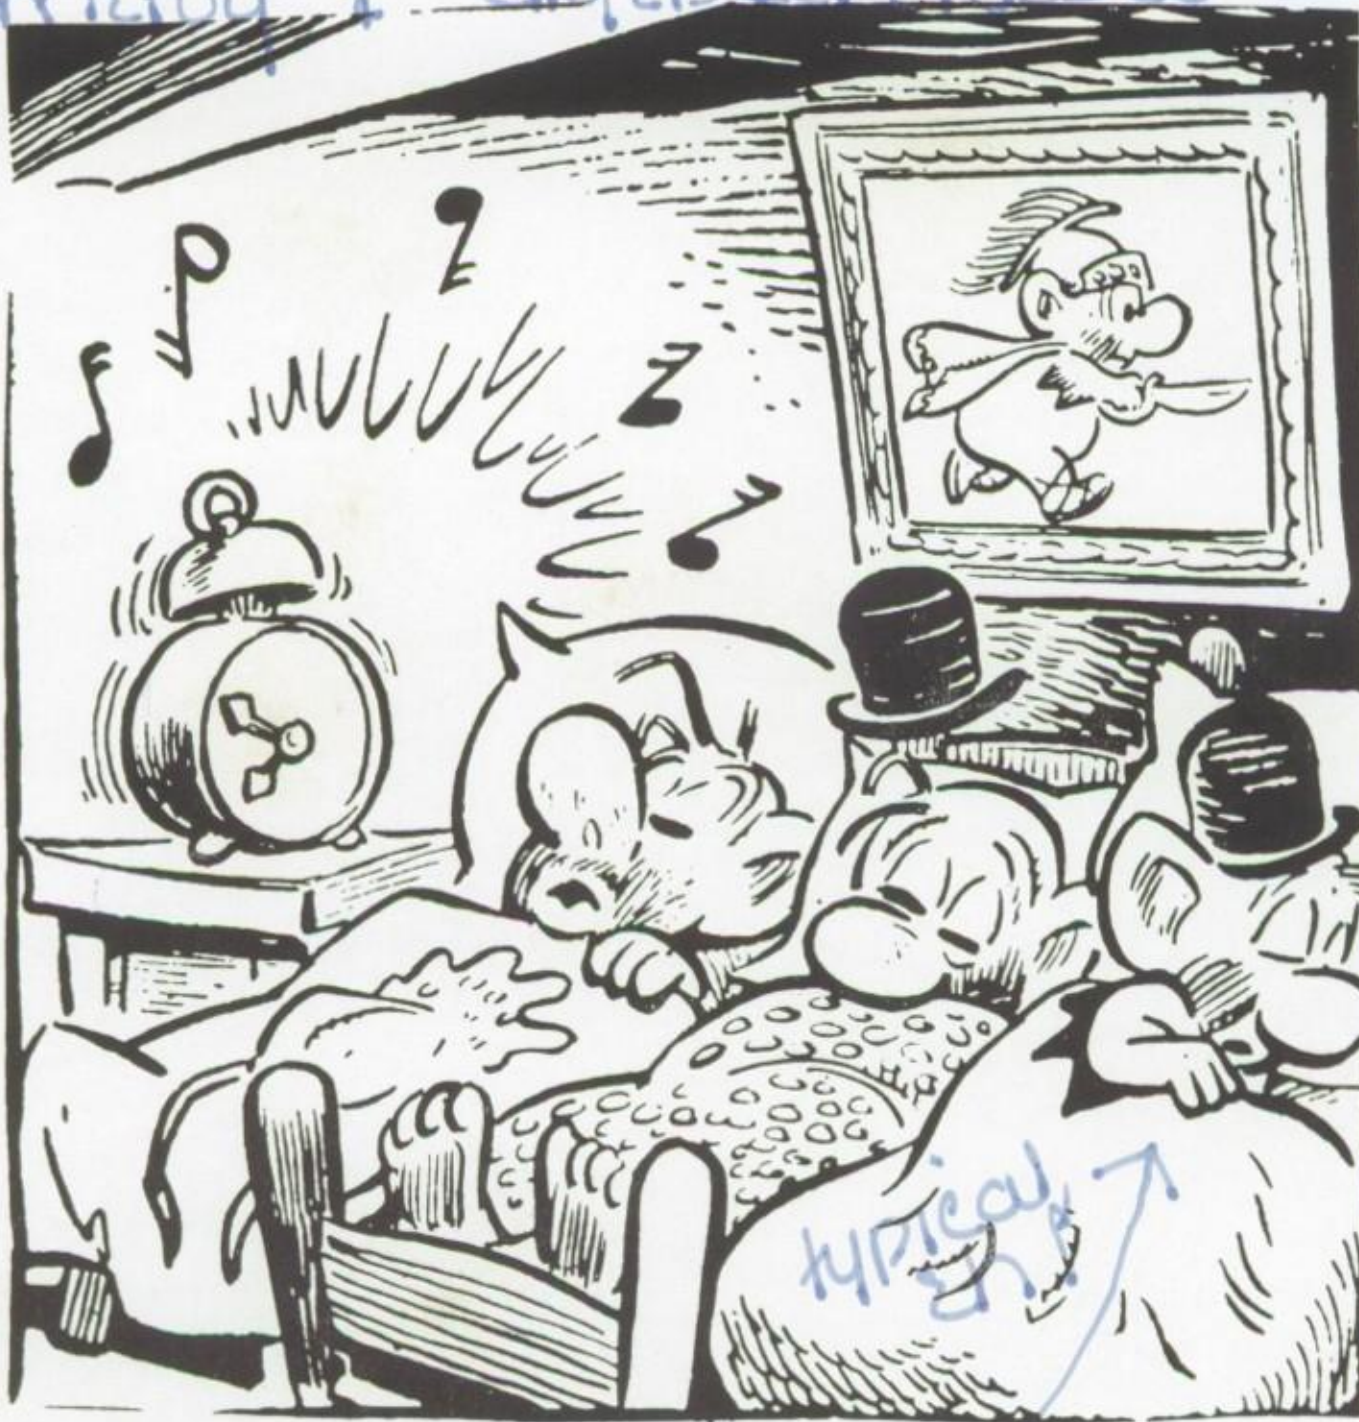

Our last year, we learned to produce and act the play, The Matchmaker. It was bound to be a success. Also, Bebe, Archer, and company became acquainted with the art of wall-papering with magazines. As Pogo learned history and government, he re-named his group the Pogo Machine. As it stands, we shall graduate the best, smartest, finest, and most attractive class ever to attend St. Catherine's—the Class of 1960.

Callant —

Well, Beeb, this year's over and we're finally going to be "big SENIORS"—that is if you come back. Really I do hope you will.

Never do know what to say in these things. Do know one thing though its hot as hell out here and the bugs are driving me nuts.

It certainly has been quite a year. I've enjoyed all of my visits to Washington 3. Don't forget all the fun we've had. We've done our share of rule breaking too. Seems like its just about my time to get caught.

Be good and have a real blast this summer

Love ya'

Organizations

Dear Hank,

Since my picture is on so many pages I will have to sign on a page without my picture. This has been a great year, only too bad we weren't on the same hall. I do hope we're together next year.

I really have enjoyed working with you on the banquet although together we may not have accomplished much. Good luck on your senior office and stay as sweet as you are.

Love,

year concert, will be more teenage year not to mention but it was worth it because this year has been super! I've never had so much fun in and out of school in one year. We're really got a damn good class - next year we will have the best senior play, best senior dance, best senior weekend, best award, best graduation - just to name a few. You got the best class. It's really been great knowing you Colvert, and I hope we will be in some classes together next year. I have fun this summer and don't go to too many Holy Roller church's - honestly when a vice told me about that I laughed for a half hour!! Be good and stay sweet. Much love & stuff -

EVERY STUDENT and every organization in the school belongs to the League, which was organized in 1927. The League was built upon a necessity and an ideal—the necessity for unity in the three schools in spirit and purpose; the ideal that this necessity accomplished, each girl would feel it her privilege, as well as her duty, to work toward the growth and enrichment of her associates, her school, and the world beyond her school.

This year, through St. Catherine's Day, the League Assembly, the League Campaign, and the Bazaar, the "Scleague Bugs" have succeeded in making "St. Cat's three-ring circus" more harmonious than ever before.

League Executive Committee

THE LEAGUE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE is made up of the president, the three vice-presidents, and the representatives from each Upper and Middle School class and from the Lower School. These officers plan and organize all League activities.

EVERY GIRL at St. Catherine's is a member of the Student Government. The Student Council, a group of girls elected by their classmates, is the executive body which heads Student Government. The duty of a council member is summed up in the oath which each member takes: "I, conscious of the trust placed in me by my fellow students, accept this responsibility and will endeavor to uphold the standards of St. Catherine's by striving to maintain both the spirit and the letter of its regulations and by helping others to do the same."

Advisory Council

THE ADVISORY COUNCIL is composed of seniors elected by their classmates for their integrity, their high standards of personal honor, and their willingness to put these qualities to work for others. The function of the Council is to advise, not to judge, and its members give sympathetic attention and thoughtful advice to any problem brought to them.

Dear Calvert, Helen, Hank - etc -

I guess I should begin by saying 'good evenin' - how is it that y'are this evenin' - But I get confused talking Johnson City - so I'd better not - hard what memories these past two years hold. In lower Study Hall - you doing my Latin - + me doing your English - I never was very good on Council - was I? Remember when Elizabeth Braddas turned us in? And then, of course, this past summer - Never have I spent such a 2 weeks - I had 30 lbs extra to prove it - Then, the fair - + you were the only one who won anything - we could've bought a million teddy bears with the times + quarters we spent! - Other than that - Remember the presumable 'surprise' party? - you, me, Barbara, Weldon - not to mention Ralph! - + that flag - what a feat of sewing that was - I could go on + on - like Emma's various remarks, our various conversations - but I guess I'd better not -

Athletics

I should give you a pep talk for this coming month - but since I realize exactly how you feel - so I'm afraid I wouldn't be very convincing would I -? It's entirely up to you, of course, + I so hope that at the end of June - I'll get a phone call full of good news - so that's all I say about that - (if I don't shut up - you'll probably omit me) - I just happened to think - you know what will seem strangest of all next year? - You + me + Miller's not sitting on the back row - passing 3 way notes - I know Mrs. Ward will miss us so much! y'know what a syllable is? H'it's the way ya burst up a word! And with that parting note, Calvert dear, - Mr. Beasley says that I'd better stop scratchin' this year annual up! -

Behave - (impossible?)

THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION is an organization of girls who hold letters for membership on either first-team hockey or basketball squad for one year, or tennis or softball squad for two years. The head cheerleaders and the president of the Stirrup Club are also members.

The purpose of the Athletic Association is to promote school spirit and unity between the Gold and the White teams.

All students from the third grade through the twelfth are divided into two teams, the Gold and the White. Every year the two teams compete athletically for points on a silver cup. Points may be won in gym classes and at the Gold and White school games. At the last League Assembly the captain of the losing team presents the cup to the captain of the winning team.

Whether or not a team succeeds depends largely on the captains from each class. This group, especially the senior captains, can be justly proud of the wonderful jobs they have done this year.

THE USUAL moans of stiffness initiated the hockey season. After several weeks of exhausting tryouts, twelve new members were added to the squad, and serious practice began. Hard work, high spirits, and co-operative team work, plus the excellent coaching of Miss Fleet, led to a successful season.

AFTER Christmas Vacation, squad tryouts were held, and the new members were chosen. After electing the captains and managers, the squad was all set for the big season. The long, hard practices began to pay off as they competed furiously all season against other schools. Perhaps the two most exciting events were the defeat of the all-time rival, Collegiate, and the Gold and White game.

Well - here goes the usual trite crap that everyone writes - this year has been quite interesting - not good - not bad - just interesting. One thing for sure we've broken more than our share of rules, but since we never were the rule obeying type that's to be expected - but I do believe you have one ahead of me if you know what I mean. (I'm such an artist)
Can't wait 'till this summer - we've got to really raise hell and I have a feeling we will do o.k. This is really gross I don't know what else to say besides you had better come back because I just don't think I can stand it without you - who would forecast the weather for me, who would help me find my train, and who would sing
Carmen for me? (Dig that parallel sentence structure)
Next year we will have to room on the same hall - poor housemother - just hope she isn't $\frac{1}{1,000,000,000,000}$ as bad as B.D." because I'm afraid we ~~g~~ would get kicked out of here for being rude - surprised we haven't this year because we have been rather rude to say the least.
I've raved by drains (what few I have) for the past half hour and just can't tell you how cute you are because the English language just doesn't have words to describe you - so I won't.

P.S. I ~~nope~~ ^{nope} you realize that this doesn't bring out my true and charming personality and the true depths of my character but that is the way the ball bounces -

Features

(Guess who) I'm happy because there are only 13 more days!!!!

guess you'll just have to wait 'till next year and if you pay me enough I'll write ya a real delightful little epistle - until then this one is rather apoptic but so true personality

Calvert -

We made it! Now you're not even sure whether you're coming back next year (the urge to kill.) - If I can take an extra year in this place, you can take one more year with me. Hope you room on Bacot III (if we get on there.) Next year really will be fun - at least it had better be after all this! We have had some mutual problems this year but other than that we've had quite a few laughs besides. Remember our boxes? - How could you ever forget? Most people can at least sew evenly. I'll be seeing you this summer, and you're gonna love Packout - at least I do!

Guess I'd better sign off - cause I can't think of anything else to say except that it really has been fun "almost rooming" with you! - See you real soon Calvert!

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET

Old Girl Party

THE old girls gave the new girls a roaring welcome in the form of a visit to Greenwich Village. Faculty and student "beats" were all out to produce a never-to-be forgotten party.

New Girl Party

NOT to be outdone by the old girls, the new girls took us back to the "Roaring Twenties." We then spent a very enjoyable evening, being entertained by the goings-on of the Red Room.

Day School Dance

FOR the Annual Day School Dance, thanks to Eva and her gang, the Tuckahoe was gaily trimmed with numerous flags and balloons heavily sprinkled with confetti. The music of Jimmy Black and his combo helped to make this year's dance better than ever.

Student Government Assembly

AT THIS assembly each student council member took her oath of office and was thus inaugurated into office.

Athletic Assembly

IN A new version of "A Christmas Carol," ghosts of sports past, present, and future showed Scrooge the evils of his poor school spirit.

League Assembly

THE LEAGUE became a circus in order to show its purpose and that of each of its parts.

ST. CATHERINE'S DAY

EVERY FALL the entire school pays homage to its patron saint, Catherine of Alexandria, in an impressive service at McVey. Students in the Upper and Middle School Glee Clubs and members of the Honor Choir, girls elected from each class for their outstanding characteristics, participate. St. Catherine's message was delivered to the students this year by Kate Roy Massie, the senior chosen by her classmates as most nearly possessing the qualities of St. Catherine. The Standard Bearer, also a senior chosen for her high character, was Sally Gump.

CANDLELIGHT SERVICES

AT THE beginning and end of each school year a candlelight service is held in the chapel. In September, each senior takes her place formally in the class by lighting her own candle, then in May passes her responsibility on to an upcoming senior by lighting her candle. Thus "a symbol of the light shining down from above" is passed on from year to year and has become "a symbol of the truth St. Catherine's has taught us to love."

Dear Calved,

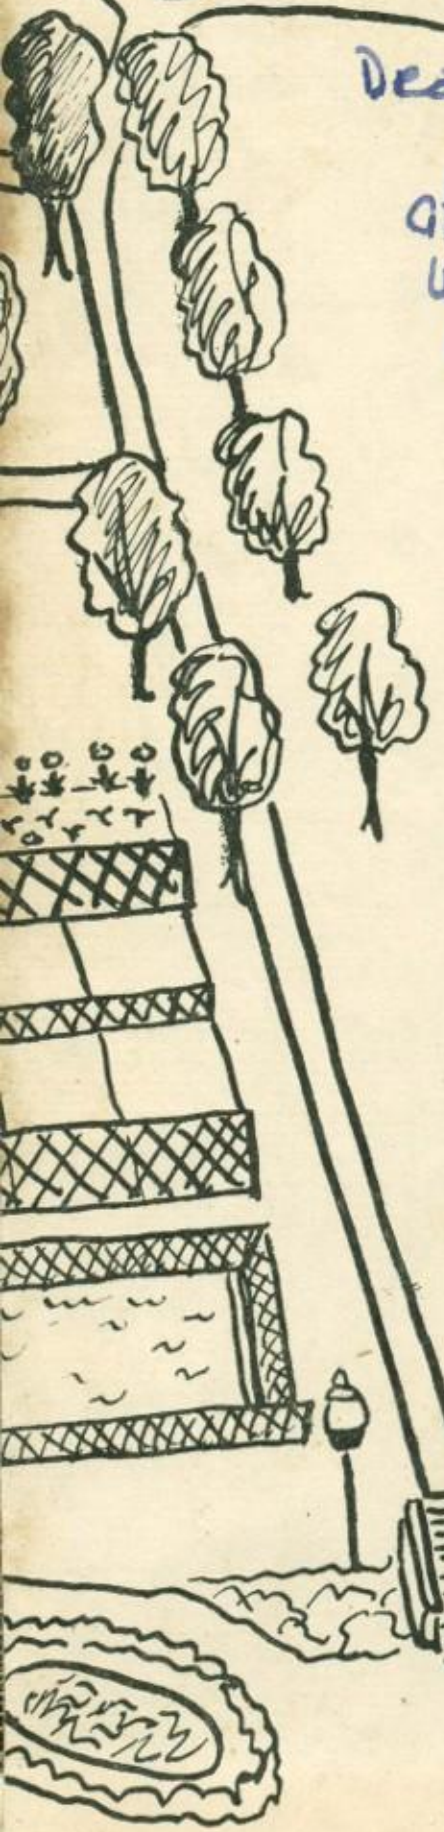

Can you believe that we're nearly seniors? Heaven help St. Cat's next year. This year has really been fun, except for things like facing Miss Kim, Miss Tyler, and Miss Booth everyday. I really hope you come back next year. What would this place be like without you and your dialect? Have a blast this summer. Watch that champagne - I hope to see you in the fall.

Love,
Charlotte

Dear Little thing - I'm always at a loss for words & when signing annuls - my wit always escapes me
I would say all that crap about about the great year etc but you and I know that the year has been
"hell" - the only things that keeps me ticking is 3rd period Wed and Friday & to be more specific Bible and Mrs. Simple!

I also find
Mrs. Booth's class entertaining & all and I can say we certainly had the pick of the teachers!
